

MEDIA RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

St. Catharines, ON (December 2nd, 2021)

November's sales statistics continue in the same pattern as in previous months; Listings were down by 13.2%, Sales were down by 13.6%, the number of days-on-market was down 4.7%, but once again, prices continued to increase 3.3% over October and 35.1% year-over-year. The lack of listing inventory continues to dramatically impact the Niagara housing market.

The MLS® Home Price Index (HPI), tracks price trends far more accurately than is possible using average or median price measures. The overall MLS® HPI composite benchmark price for the Niagara Region was $701,700 in November 2021.

The characteristics of the HPI composite benchmark is a home between the age of 51 to 99 with three bedrooms and two bathrooms. A full list can be found in the accompanying chart.

“Why Now Is a Great Time to Sell Your House

As we near the end of the year, more homeowners are realizing the benefits of today's sellers' market. Record-breaking home price appreciation, growing equity, low inventory, and competitive mortgage rates are motivating homeowners to make a move that addresses their changing lifestyles.

According to George Ratiu, Manager of Economic Research at realtor.com:

“The pandemic has delayed plans for many homeowners looking to move on to the next stage of life. Recent survey data suggests a significant number of prospective sellers are actively preparing to enter the market this winter.” So, that means more homes are about to hit the market, which will lead to more choices for buyers too.

If you're thinking of waiting until the spring to sell your house, know that your neighbors may be one step ahead of you by selling this winter. If you want to stand out from the crowd, this holiday season is the best time to make sure your house is available for buyers. Here's why:

Sellers Are Still Firmly in the Driver's Seat

Historically, a 6-month supply of homes for sale is needed for a normal or neutral market. That level ensures there are enough homes available for active buyers and prices will appreciate only in line with inflation. Current inventories are significantly lower which would be defined as a Sellers' Market where supply and demand will result in significant price appreciation.

What Does That Mean for You?

When the supply of homes for sale is as low as it is today, it's much harder for buyers to find homes to purchase. This drives up competition among buyers, who then submit increasingly competitive offers to win out against others in the home search process. As this happens, prices rise and your leverage as a seller rises too, putting you in the best position to negotiate a contract that meets your ideal terms.

And while the low housing supply we're facing won't be solved overnight, sellers this season should move quickly to maximize their potential. As the data shows, with more prospective sellers planning to list their homes this winter, selling sooner rather than later helps your house rise to the top of a holiday buyer's wish list.

Bottom Line

Listing your home over the next few weeks gives you the best chance to be in front of buyers competing for homes this Holiday Season.
